What did you achieve?: I produced a seminal report to the Higher Education Standards Panel on the potential impacts of new technologies and developments in disaggregated learning in the context of the HESF. This work has been used as the basis for several succeeding activities of the HESP and TEQSA and has been considered in the reframing of the AQF and improved approaches to professional accreditation.

What does the sector need now?: The review of the AQF is underway and is informed by a preliminary review I was commissioned to write. It promises to simplify and make the AQF more useable and up to date.
