Fellow Profile

Emeritus Professor Geoff Scott
Western Sydney University

Geoff Scott is Emeritus Professor of Higher Education & Sustainability at Western Sydney University. He has led changes in school, technical and higher education learning and teaching since the 1970s.

Fellowship title: The focus of this senior fellowship was on ensuring we are developing graduates who are not only work ready for today but work ready plus for an uncertain tomorrow. The FLIPCurric site (at: flipcurric.edu.au) brings together the work of some 3700 higher education learning and teaching leaders from around the world on how best to tackle this issue.

Year completed: 2016

Expertise key words: change, implementation, learning

What did you achieve?: The FLIPCurric site is currently being used by more than 12,000 higher educators around the world to review their curriculum and ensure that the capabilities developed in graduates are what are needed in the ‘age of acceleration’ and that the assessment of these outcomes is powerful.

What does the sector need now?: Universities that are transdisciplinary, focused on STEAM not STEM, socially entrepreneurial, action oriented and committed to addressing the UN’s 17 Sustainable Development Goals.
